For many years the “go to” resource for information on current Supreme Court developments was BNA’s Supreme Court Today feature in U.S. Law Week. Although U.S. Law Week has now been available through Bloomberg Law for a little while now, it has only recently made the Supreme Court Today content available on that platform. In addition to adding the content found in the hard-copy version of U.S. Law Week, Bloomberg Law has also made available its “Supreme Court Today Tracker™” feature which was first developed on BNA’s proprietary platform.

The advantages to using this feature include the ability to filter Supreme Court cases by their status (e.g. filed, granted, etc.), the event type (e.g. interim-order, judgment vacated, etc.), and also by the primary and secondary topic assigned to each docketed and disposed case (e.g. Administrative Law).

All Law School faculty are entitled to access Bloomberg Law. If you do not already have an account please contact your library liaison.

Library Resources on Academic Skills

In recognition of recent changes to the ABA standards regarding learning outcomes, practical skills, and student assessment, the Law Library has prepared a number of resource guides. These guides provide an overview of resources, both within the library and available more widely, that faculty members can direct students to in order to assist them with improving in certain areas. The guides include the following:

- Academic Skills: Study Aids, Exam Prep & More
- Law School Learning Outcomes and Assessment
- Survival Guide for New Students
