New CALI Features

CALI has recently augmented their product with new lessons, new formative assessment tools, and new experiential learning projects for the law school environment. New is the LessonLive feature which combines instant feedback with QuizWright or with 1000+ CALI lessons. Faculty can walk through a quiz or a lesson inside the classroom and see student performance in real-time.

This past fall CALI launched a new formative assessment platform, QuizWright. This service allows faculty to deliver short assessments inside and outside the classroom. CALI's free legal education casebooks have been downloaded over 100,000 times and new titles are added every year.

Scholarship Repository Milestone

Many of you might have noticed the announcement on the Law School’s website shortly before the Christmas break indicating that the Scholarship@CUA Law repository was scheduled to hit the 1,000,000 downloads milestone around the New Year. The milestone was actually reached on January 4th.

A closer look at those numbers indicates that the repository currently consists of over 1,100 faculty authored works, including full-text scholarly articles and descriptions of books authored by our current and retired faculty. These works have been downloaded almost 200,000 times since the inception of the repository in 2014.

The two most popular faculty authored works are currently a 2003 Jurist article by Ken Pennington (Innocent Until Proven Guilty: The Origins of a Legal Maxim) and a 2005 Boston University Law Review article co-authored by Sarah Duggin (Natural Born in the USA: The Striking Unfairness and Dangerous Ambiguity of the Constitution’s Presidential Qualifications Clause and Why we Need to Fix It). Both have received over 8,000 downloads.

Nota Bene
We are currently compiling the faculty scholarship produced in 2017. If you have any publications from 2017 that are not reflected in the Bibliography please let us know.
