New Reference Librarian

Many of you may have known Emily Black, our Evening Reference Librarian. Emily retired last month, and we are now in the process of filling the position. In the meantime, we have hired a temporary Reference Librarian, Kristina Martinez, who will work at the Reference Desk Monday-Thursday from 4pm to 8pm. Kristina obtained her Master's of Library & Information Science from the University of Wisconsin. Before moving to the DC area in the fall of 2017, she worked as an Outreach Services Librarian at the Wisconsin State Law Library. Her main responsibility there was to provide reference services to judges, court staff, attorneys, and the public. Please stop by if you need evening reference assistance, Monday-Thursday, 4pm-8pm -- or simply to welcome her to the CUA Law School Community.

Textbooks on Reserve

The library’s textbook policy is to purchase required textbooks for required and staple courses. The library does NOT purchase coursepacks. The best way to locate a textbook is to search using the “Reserves/Exams” tab on the left menu of our law library home page at http://www.law.edu/library/. Using the drop down menu, it is possible to search by professor or course. Unfortunately, we have not yet received some required texts – but we anticipate receiving them shortly.

If the textbook you are looking for is not a required textbook for a required or staple course, it is also good to search our online catalog for it just in case it is in our collection (perhaps donated by a professor, for example). The link to the online catalog is right next to the course reserves link on the law library’s home page.

Scholarship Repository Surpasses 1 Million Downloads

The Scholarship @ CUA Law repository (https://scholarship.law.edu), managed by the Law Library, recently recorded its 1 millionth download. The repository, which was created in April 2014, provides full text access to scholarship written by faculty, students and the CUA law journals. The repository also has an archive of Events, Lectures and Conference series that were held at CUA Law.
