I. INTRODUCTORY SUMMARY

The Reference Department worked closely with faculty throughout the year, affirming that the liaison program is thriving and functioning quite well. The staff estimates that they responded to 1,200 student and faculty questions of a substantial nature during a 14-month period. A major event in the Reference Department was the retirement of 34-year veteran Librarian and Associate Director Pat Petit, who left the library in October 2007. Interviews for Petit’s replacement took place over the summer and fall. Steve Young stepped in temporarily to lead the staff during the fall and winter. Successful candidate Elizabeth Edinger, legal reference librarian from the University of California at Berkeley, joined the staff in February. Two speaking engagement highlights of the reference staff’s year were: a panel organized by Reference Librarian Yvette Brown on the creation and maintenance of the Catholic Dimensions of Legal Studies: The Catholic University Law School Bibliography presented to the Catholic Library Association’s annual meeting in April; and Steve Young’s participation as a panelist in an ABA Conference on legal ethics in June.

The Circulation Department responded to 615 faculty and student requests for interlibrary loan, and lent more than 880 items to outside libraries. In-house circulation statistics indicate that some 8,443 items were charged out to faculty and students. The Department also expanded interlibrary loan service to law students through the OCLC online loan system. Head of Access Services, Frances Brillantine, spearheaded the adoption of MyColumbo, software which permits students and faculty to manage their library accounts.

During the 2006 academic year, the Technical Services Department supervised a major review of serial publications with the goal to reduce redundant or little-used titles. Law journal subscriptions were also reviewed for the same purpose. Substantial headway was made on claiming missing items and completing longstanding binding problems. The staff recommended moving to Hein electronic green slips to speed along book selection, as well as purchasing TDNet, an electronic journal locator system. The unit also filled three technician positions, the result of normal turnover.

Len Davidson, Systems Librarian, worked diligently on several initiatives including designing a software program for reserving student study rooms, downloading first year law student identification information into the library’s online system, and upgrading much of the library’s computer equipment.

Media Services Director, Greg Stack, vigorously promoted using classroom Sympodium technology and offered frequent training sessions to faculty on how to use the new system. During fall 2006 much staff time was spent on preparing for the installation of technology systems in four seminar rooms, permitting more faculty to use technology with small classes. This project was completed during the Christmas break. Overall technology has continued to play a much larger role in classroom pedagogy. The staff also provided technology support for 89 law school special events.

III. SERVICES

A. Public Services – Reference Department

1. Reference Staffing

The retirement of Pat Petit in October 2006 was the only change in reference staffing for academic 2006-2007, albeit a major change. All evening librarians continued in their part-time positions. In the fall Steve Young stepped in as acting Head of Public Services during the search for a candidate to replace Petit. In order to provide more temporary coverage, retired law librarian Leonard Klein, formerly of George Washington University Law School, joined the staff for four months. In February 2007, Beth Edinger, legal reference librarian from the University of California at Berkeley, joined the staff, replacing Petit.

2. Reference, Research and Teaching

During academic year 2006-2007 faculty liaison teams were reshuffled a bit in preparation for the departure of Pat Petit, and because of the need to spread work more evenly. The limited re-pairing of several faculty with different reference librarians appeared to be successful based on the comments received. The reference librarians estimate that they received approximately 1,200 faculty and student requests for reference assistance of a “substantial nature.” As in the past, some were quick projects; others more complicated and time consuming.

Among the topics researched were the following:

- Which states have adopted the Model Rules of Professional Responsibility?

- Locate instances of collaborations between law school disciplinary programs and offices of disciplinary counsel.

- Locate the travaux préparatoires for the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations.

- Find medical and sociological research on maternal fetal bonding during pregnancy.

- What federal laws apply to the interception of VOIP transmissions?

- What are the rules governing the applicability of the hearsay rule and the confrontation clause in traffic cases in Maryland?

- Locate the recent amendments to the (UK) Mutiny Act.

- Find information on the frequency of pre-implantation genetic diagnosis used by married couples utilizing IVF procedures.
3. Addition of New Electronic Titles to Library Catalog

During 2006-2007 the LexisNexis Digital Hearings Collection Retrospective B (1980-2003) was added to the growing number of digitized Congressional research materials available from the library.

4. Implemented New Electronic Tools

TDNet, an electronic journal finder, was introduced in fall 2006. TDNet identifies journals that are already available to the students and faculty through existing library subscriptions. By entering a journal title into a search field, one can quickly ascertain which of our various library electronic services (or other University databases) contain the item in full-text electronic format. Frequently searches indicate that Hein Online, Lexis and Westlaw have the sources needed.

Another new electronic tool added during the year was Westlaw’s KeyCite, which was installed on Patron terminals. With the elimination of many standard Shepard citators, the staff believed that library walk-in patrons would have no way of updating their research. Westlaw’s KeyCite was installed to facilitate citation updating. Law students and faculty already have the service through the law school Westlaw subscription.

The reference and circulation librarian book selectors migrated to reviewing electronic book slips during the spring 2007 in an attempt to streamline the selection of new materials. The first experiment was undertaken with William S. Hein’s electronic green slips. The change reduces paper shuffling, but it remains uncertain whether electronic book selection is more efficient than old fashion paper slips.

5. Intern and Reference Redesign

The library staff welcomed University of Washington law library student intern Cindy Dabney to the staff for four weeks in August 2007. The University of Washington program places students in law library internships in order to better train them for real-life library work, as well as to fulfill academic credits.

The staff began planning for the redesign of the Reference Reading area to accommodate more student and staff interaction.

B. Public Services – Circulation Department

1. Circulation Department Staffing

Library Student Christine McMahon replaced Christine Stanley as Circulation library assistant.
2. Circulation Activity

During academic year 2006-2007 the Circulation staff circulated some 8,443 items within the law school community. Interlibrary loan activity with other institutions included the borrowing of 615 items for faculty and students, and the lending of 884 items to other law schools and law firms in Washington, D.C. and across the United States.

3. Online Library Request Form

The Circulation Department implemented a new feature of Columbo that permits students to request materials on interlibrary loan electronically. The library initiated this feature when the staff began to offer expanded interlibrary loan services to students in fall 2006.

4. Courtesy Overdue Notice Alerts

During the academic school year a new courtesy e-mail notice to students was implemented that alerts students when charged-out library books are soon to be due or renewed.

5. MyColumbo

The staff implemented a new feature of the online card catalog called MyColumbo, which permits students to customize the software to help them manage their library account. For example, MyColumbo allows students and faculty to review their library account, renew materials online, track their own reading history, save favorite searches, and the like.

6. Online Study Room Reservation System

Through the work of Systems Librarian Len Davidson the Circulation Department implemented an online reservation system which can be used to reserve study rooms over the internet. This new library service was greatly appreciated by all law students.

7. Security

The Circulation Department worked with Systems Librarian Len Davidson to install carrel locking docks to secure laptops with a security cable. Circulation also purchased 40 security cables for students to borrow. During the academic year the cables were lent to students some 600 times. Security guard service was extended into the summer months during the bar study period.

8. Equipment Upgrades

During the year circulation desk attendant computers were replaced and the Director of Access Services received a new printer. New bar scanning equipment also was added.
C. Public Services – Teaching

Helping to support the library’s instructional mission, Pat Petit became an adjunct faculty member after retirement and taught Advanced Legal Research and Writing with adjunct Judge Timony during the spring semester. Library Director Steve Margeton taught Advanced Legal Research in fall 2006, and the reference staff taught many individualized classes on special areas of legal research. Margeton also taught in the American Law Program in Poland during fall 2006.

D. Public Services/Technical Services – Publications

1. The Catholic Dimensions of Legal Studies: The Catholic University Law School Bibliography

Pat Petit continued editorial work on the third edition of The Catholic Dimensions of Legal Studies: The Catholic University Law School Bibliography. The bibliography is a multiyear work with considerable time spent on collecting books and journal articles that are summarized in annotations. The work is planned for publication during spring 2008.

2. Other Publications

The Public Services Department continues to prepare library guides for using online web services and researching legal subjects. The guides can be found in display units throughout the library, reproduced in library publications, and posted on the library’s web page.

Librarians also prepare articles, bibliographies, books and book chapters for professional publication. These items are included near the end of the Annual Report under their individual librarian names.

F. Automation Services

1. Staffing

   Systems Librarian Len Davidson has been with the library staff for almost two years. During this time he has mastered the library’s many automation routines, computer systems, procedures for equipment installation and replacement, and necessary in-house repairs. Davidson is a full-time staff of one – with part-time assistance from student helpers and the law school’s Office of Computer Services. During First Year Student Orientation he helped new students set up laptop configurations which was valuable experience for him and provided an extra set of hands at the week-long equipment configuration exercise.

2. Hardware and Software

   During the academic year Len focused on the day-to-day activities of maintaining all computer systems in the library, and also accomplished the following tasks:

   - Installed 17 new PCs and LCD monitors in large lab;
   - Replaced 20 oldest PCs in library with the PCs that were recycled from the large lab as a result of the equipment upgrade. The 20 machines were sent to: public access computer locations; Technical Services; faculty study rooms, and the carrels on the 4th floor that serve as an extension of the computer lab;
   - Upgraded memory in Innovative Interfaces server, and helped mount the server in the new computer room rack; moving the rather noisy server to the new location reduced the decibel level in Len’s office where the server previously resided;
   - Provided six library staff members with new Dell PC’s and 19 inch LCD monitors;
   - Rotated Laptop printers and worked with the Computer Services Department to study the use of Ikon copiers for student printing;
   - Both introduced and upgraded the Student Study Room Reservation System. Designed in spring 2006, the system went live in fall 2006; additional features were added in spring 2007. It has turned out to be one of the library’s most popular features;
   - Loaded patron student names and addresses into Innovative Interfaces Library system from the registrar’s digital file; this was the first time that a digital load had been undertaken in many years;
   - Helped plan for necessary new computer equipment in the redesigned reference area;
   - Continued adding and replacing power strips on tables throughout the library to provide more options to students for using laptops;
• Continued monitoring printing statistics during the semester to if the library is meeting student needs.

3. Web Access

   New content was added to several secondary pages and the home page was tweaked a bit. Len also provided statistics on how many Internet users come to various pages of the library website (Appendix I).

G. Media Services

1. Staffing

   Greg Stack, Director of Media Services, and David Luce, audiovisual coordinator, logged in more than 900 requests for classroom media equipment assistance, as well as 35 reservations for major special events technology support. With only two full-time staff members and two part-time students, the department is kept quite busy throughout the year. A statistical summary for the academic year can be found in the Appendix II.

2. Major Equipment Installations

   Four seminar rooms were equipped with electronic podium presentation systems that include a simple push button interface, PCs, LCD projectors, a plasma screen, and Smart Technology (220, 311, 313). The technology in classroom 307 was updated to match other classrooms with the removal of suspended monitors and the upgrade to the podium touch screen interface. Practically all classrooms and seminar rooms are supported with integrated presentation systems.

3. Bar Preparation and Academic Excellence Initiative

   A major undertaking to support Bar Preparation and Academic Excellence programs was developed and initiated successfully. Many learning sessions have been encoded and made web accessible. This methodology has been embraced for distributing many more programs as indicated by ongoing demand well into spring 2007. Students may view these programs anywhere they have access to The West Educational Network (TWEN).

4. Webcast and Archiving

   The staff also provided support for several webcasted special events, as well as retrieved numerous archived videotapes of past law school conferences for The Center for Law, Philosophy, and Culture. The Center is planning to make this collection web accessible.
5. Videoconferencing

The staff supported videoconferencing requests from the law school Office of Career and Professional Development (remote student/employer interview) and the University’s School of Canon Law (Vatican teleconference).

6. Extra-curricular support

Greg Stack continued with consultation and production of external recording sessions for the history of clinical legal education project.

7. Tutorials

During fall and spring 2006-2007 Stack continued offering tutorials to many faculty which covered PowerPoint, Smart Technology, Acrobat, and the use of presentation tools and technology.
